

“CNM Opened the Door to my Passion”

Romina Melwani,
CNM Nutrition graduate

After completing my diploma, I continued my learning process and also specialised in Mycotherapy, the science of using mushrooms therapeutically. I now consult for several supplement companies as well as head the Educational Services for the Association for Naturopathic Practitioners (ANP).

After retraining in Nutritional Therapy and being where I am in such a short span of time, I truly think anything is possible if you have passion. Studying at CNM showed me that training in natural therapies is the future of health.

“CNM offered me the flexibility to combine studying with my long working hours”

Tired of running the rat race as a Business Development Manager in Finance, I had an awakening when I attended a talk on the impact of food on the body and mind during a business trip.

The information I heard on the day left me with a sense of fascination for natural medicine. The more I explored this field, the more my passion for holistic health intensified. It became clear that I had found my calling. It was only later that I realised that the very same passion would eventually give me the courage to turn away from a well laid out career path and pursue my dream.

CNM offered me the flexibility to combine studying with my long working hours.

What I loved most about CNM's course was the variety in the lecturers, their experience and practical advice which really helped set expectations for career development and growth. I found the experience eye opening, promising and challenging.

CNM opened the door to my passion and gave me the confidence to make a difference to people's lives by guiding their lifestyle and health choices. Learning how herbs and nutrients modulate chronic conditions, and knowing 'We' will be the Game Changers in the future of integrative medicine has been a huge motivation for me.
